I'm migrating an old Liferay installation (3.0.1) to a new server (Liferay 6.2.2). We have some users that should be disabled when moving to the new server. Unfortunately, Liferay's user.check.enable field is ignored when moving users from a Liferay 3.0.1 server to a Liferay 6.2.2 one. Does Liferay 6.2.2 provide something similar to what Liferay 3.0.1 did? A: User.check.enable is deprecated since Liferay 6.2 and no longer supported. Relevant commit here. There is no way of doing this in the context of moving users. Growth and Habitat Use Patterns of a Captive Lagomorpha Population (Castor canadensis): A Comparison of Group and Individual Use. The Lagomorpha are the only small mammals that, with the exception of Cricetomys gambianus and C. micrurus, breed during the winter months. Of all the lagomorphs, the American Cricetomys (family Cricetidae) are of particular interest because they occur at high densities and have low susceptibility to disease, but are also subject to population decline.
