It also supports recording of web pages, the clipboard, computer mouse, windows or any item/menu in the system. It records the current mouse position and even captures active windows to enable you to record them. In addition, you can save your recorded files to any formats you want, including.txt and.exe. The interface of the software is very easy to use, even for inexperienced users. When you click on the Recording tab, the application will display the list of current recording controls, along with a description of each option. There are two modes for recording: continuous recording and one-key recording. In the continuous mode, the application will record each press of a key on the keyboard, until you quit the application. This option enables you to record a sequence of keystrokes in a loop, even if you are doing other things in the system. In the one-key mode, you can pause and resume recording at any time. In this mode, the application will record each keystroke you press, until you release the key. You can even choose which key you want to use. 1d6a3396d6
