GAME0469 Description Hatsune Miku's music is a huge boon for anyone with even a limited interest in music, anime or cosplay. But Miku's popularity is only beginning to spread far beyond the realm of the otaku. By combining the Vocaloid series with some of today's best and most innovative artists, Miku is slowly starting to make inroads into the mainstream. All of this is about to change, thanks to the animation studio, Studio Tokiwa, and their release of four alternate taking of the moe-loving anime character Hatsune Miku. Taking the existing 3D model of Miku, Tokiwa have given the character a stylish makeover, with character portraits, colouring and costumes designed by some of today's best artists. But we're not just posting this up on the web - we're giving you a chance to win one of four of these excellent new models for yourself! Simply download the file below, print off the image and have them on stand by for the next few weeks! PlayStation Vita Download This content requires PlayStation®Plus membership.

Semantic modulation of neural responses to static and dynamic stimuli: an ERP study on face recognition. Many cognitive processes rely on integration of sensory and semantic information to perform a given task, with high-level semantic cues modulating the processing of low-level sensory information to enhance or impair performance. In this article, we studied the effect of semantic cues on the processing of static and dynamic images of faces. ERP-evoked potentials were recorded from eight subjects while they performed a face recognition task under three different stimulus conditions: static faces only, dynamic faces only, and dynamic faces preceded by a semantic cue, at the same location and time as the static or the dynamic face. The semantic cue was a scrambled face, at the exact same location and time as the dynamic face. A dynamic face generated more negative potentials over the right inferior frontal gyrus than did a static face, independently of the presence or absence of a semantic cue. By contrast, the scrambled face condition generated more positive evoked potentials over frontal and occipital regions than did the dynamic face. The semantic cue biased the right frontal activity to a more anterior position, and modulated the evoked potentials in an opposite direction. Moreover, in the scrambled face condition, the negativity of the evoked potentials was amplified compared to the dynamic face condition, suggesting a competition between the contextual information provided by the dynamic face and

The main task in this game - destroy all enemy spaceships on the radar screen! They may be friends or enemies, but it does not matter, they must be destroyed! Press the red button to send your missiles to the next target, you can see on the radar screen. Your allies are shown in green color, so you must concentrate on destroying your opponents. At any time when you get a red point, you must immediately destroy all enemy spaceships, then this will go in the red color. It is possible to miss one or two enemy spaceships, but it's OK, the game will move on with the new assignments. It's up to you to complete the mission with flying colors! Do you have what it takes? Good luck! 3D Adventures is a world famous game about vehicle racing. All of us dream of getting behind the wheel of a sports car and experience the thrill of racing with other drivers. It turns out that the true dream is to be able to own your very own high-tech, 3D sports car. If you are not satisfied with your current vehicle, let's talk about the business you can invest into an efficient racing car. You are a professional pilot. You have to develop the best spaceship for the future battles in the solar system, and your career depends on this project. The player will have to build and fight his own way to win the space race. For the first time, players can take part in their own space battles - you can battle the artificial intelligence and see all the results in real time. Take your spaceship out to an unknown space. You will travel across the solar system and meet many different characters along the way. The goal is to collect as many medals as possible, but you must be careful! There are dangerous monsters, and, most importantly, a growing number of UFO ships. Throughout the game, the player can collect money that can be spent in the shop, which allows you to purchase more advanced spaceships, weapons, and paint. As a combat action strategy game, the player will be at the heart of a war between two of the most powerful factions in the galaxy: the Republic and the Imperials. The below function doesn't work for me, because it separates the string elements from the floats. lambda c: str(sum(c[1])/len(c)) What's a good way to get the average of the floats using a lambda expression? A: You don't need a lambda to use the sum function: sum(float(k) for k in d.values()) / len(d.values()) Here k is the key, and in your case will only be the strings, not the floats. best known for just climbing. Those are the next climbs I'm currently working on. I'm getting a better idea of why I was so drawn to climbing and how much better I am at it now than I was then. In March 2009, I had my worst climbing season ever but it propelled me into a great new chapter in my climbing career. The lead to Cairns is surprisingly steep and not too overhanging, so it's not nearly as nasty as I imagined it to be. There's a rail and ties on the ground that make it
