

The Entity is a horror house styled game. You have to go through the house finding clues that your grandma left you years ago about the strange creatures. Make sure to keep an eye out for the keys as some can be quite hidden, the keys and clues all glow slightly (clues more so). We didn't just want The Entity to be another jump-scare horror game so we have tried our best to find better ways to scare as well as having jump scares. When looking through the breath taking house make sure to keep an eye on your generator power as if that gets empty you're in for some pain. Charging your phone to be able to use it's light will drain the generator power very fast if you keep doing it, but also having many lights on at once will have the same effect. The Entity has three different and completely unique endings for you to explore depending on what you do through the game. The Entity has partial controller support (you will need keyboard/mouse for menus) and we currently support five languages, English, Spanish, simplified Chinese, Polish, German and Russian. If there is demand to add any more languages we will add them. We hope You will enjoy playing The Entity. We also plan on having trading cards but currently we are not eligible. Language: Korean. UK Region: Not stated. There's not too much to say about this TV drama. It's I Can See Your Voice Season 2. You already know about the I Can See Your Voice, which began back in 2009 with the first season. This time the hit show went all global, starting out in America and expanding into Europe, Australia and other countries. So this is the second season. In fact, this is the second season of the global show which was created by Korea's biggest comedy show producer, Tae Woo Lee. But this time around, things were not so rosy as the last season was. So it's I Can See Your Voice Season 2. All of the stars of the first season are returning this time. Some of them are better, some are worse, and some stayed the same as the last season. But still, there's a good bunch of well-known Korean and international stars that you will see in this episode of I Can See Your Voice Season 2. At least the drama is still written by the legendary Nam Goong-woo, who is a Korean TV drama veteran, and producer Lee Hye-in, who is the current writer of the popular Reply 1988 and 2 Days and 1 Night dramas. They have written for Korea's best and most well-known dramas like Oh My Ghost, Insomnia, and The Great Seer. But they have also written for the least successful dramas, such as He Loves. So all in all, it's I Can See Your Voice Season 2. The I Can See Your Voice is an investigative comedy drama that centers around a man named Oh Tae Gu (Jin Goo) who runs a group of young female singers called Girls' Generation as an act, along with his close group of friends and fan.
