As part of our academic program, we ask all of our students to follow a set of academic ethics. These ethics are designed to assist students in making the right choices regarding their behavior on campus and use of the Internet. Students must remember that the Internet is a digital community in which all members share responsibility for ensuring the safety of its members. In addition, some of the other digital communities in which most of us live, work, and play are also part of the Internet. Therefore, we consider our students to be part of this digital community. It is a community that operates within the rules and principles we have developed. While the content of the Internet is very diverse and can be both educational and informative, it is not meant to be an open forum for all of the comments, postings, and other forms of communication that are now made available. The Internet and all that it contains is not to be used as a means of entertainment or escape, but is designed to be used for both educational and informative purposes. With this in mind, it is incumbent upon the students of the Schools of Arts and Sciences to use the Internet to pursue the goals of their studies. The code of conduct applies to all students at SACS. We ask that you read and follow this code, and have at least a passing knowledge of it. With this in mind, we ask that you take the following steps in order to comply with the code: Limit your access to the Internet and other social networks on your computer and/or smart device(s) Limit your usage of the Internet and other social networks to only those that are necessary Limit your use of the Internet to only those activities that are useful in your academic pursuit Remain on the campus all times, unless you are preparing for a test or attending class Participate in our program, with the number of hours and classes your schedule allows. Limit your use of the Internet and other social networks to only those that are necessary for your education. Observe the following rules and regulations: Post your message only to the group that you have been invited to join. Do not post any type of non-educational information. Do not post any type of personal information about yourself, your family or your friends. Read our General Web Use Policy and the Web Application Policy before posting or reading any message or content on the web. Attend the Web Safety classes if you are new to the Internet. Complete the Web and Digital Technology Coursework. Use acceptable language when 2edc1e01e8
